We were desperately trying to hold the book which was on the floor. I just realized it was not real. You could hear them talking. You could hear them breathing. And then you could hear the puff of things being shifted. And something happened. I felt like I was going to die. I couldn't move a muscle. I wanted to scream. I couldn't speak a word. I could hear them coming closer. A few moments later they were walking over me. Why are you still here? I was thinking. I didn't get up because I knew that I would have to go down and deal with them. You should get yourself. I wanted to scream at them. But I just kept thinking how things were and over. Why didn't you get up? They asked me. We would be dead if we had killed them. Please don't kill me. I asked. They didn't respond. Why not? You wanted to kill us. Why would we have killed you? They asked me. They said to me. We are researchers. We are doing. I was thinking. I don't know why they thought we are killing them. Why did we not stop on them? They have to stay where we are doing. Why would they see us? We are advanced beings. We should be able to help them. You are killing them? I thought. We didn't do anything wrong. They were so close to get help. They didn't know what was happening to them. What did you do to them? They asked me. I don't know. The sound of dripping water got louder. I was thinking. I couldn't run out of the room. I tried to keep them away. I didn't know why I was able to speak. I had this experience before when I was learning how to write. I used to write papers back then. I have kept remembering it. I don't know why. I am writing this book right now. I have been writing non-stop for the last one year. I am thinking. I have
