Joao Bosco's Songbook Volume 3 Almir Chediak.Q: Deleting last element of NSMutableArray of SKSpriteNodes fails I have this code to delete last element of array: [self removeChild:_enemies[self.selectedMode-1] cleanup:YES]; I have assigned _enemies to an NSMutableArray and later assigning it to SKSpriteNodes and this code is inside of removeAllChildren method. It doesn't work and if I print out the elements of the array the last element is the first one, but I still can use it, it still exists. So I deleted the last element in the array but it isn't erased. I'm using ARC and the code above is inside a release method. A: removeChild: will remove the child itself from the parent's scene graph, but you don't have to remove it from the parent if you're using the garbage collector. For example: class A { SKNode *kNode; } @interface MyClass : A { NSMutableArray *_enemies; } @implementation -(void)setMyEnemies:(NSMutableArray *)newEnemies { _enemies = newEnemies; } -(void)dealloc { [_enemies removeLastObject]; [super dealloc]; } @end You will find that the last object is still in the array but that it's impossible to access it. Consider using a NSMutableIndexSet to track the index of the last element in the array, so that you can remove all the nodes that are at that index using [_enemies removeIndexesInRange:NSMakeRange([_enemies indexOfObject:_lastObject], 1)]; Q:
