With that said I have ran across some sites that are based on the same search engine, so you can try searching for random sites and selecting one of them that is similar to that you are looking for. But I am not sure if you will get an actual link.

Example of sites based on the same search engine (based on 8 of the 10 torrents you posted):
America's political divide is not between Democrats and Republicans. It's between a free-market capitalist economy and an interventionist government. That's the real divide. Throughout the 2019-2020 presidential campaign, the candidates have tried to convince voters that they represent the best in each camp. Yet even as they've tried to navigate their way through this schism, they've shown that there's little that divides the two camps: Neither wants to give the other the upper hand. Echocardiographic scoring systems have been devised to help clinicians in the diagnosis of myocarditis and the risk of cardiac allograft rejection. These scoring systems have shown high sensitivities and specificities in different populations, but they have not been used routinely in clinical practice. However, these systems are useful for the diagnosis of myocarditis in different patient populations. They are helpful in predicting post-transplant outcomes in patients with myocarditis. They are highly sensitive for detecting pathological intramyocardial tissue in rejection studies. They are more efficient in detecting myocardial pathology, and at least one scoring system shows high sensitivity in detecting myocardial involvement in systemic inflammatory diseases.
